

Job Changes and Your Retirement Assets

Did you know that the average American changes jobs once every four years? The result is that you may have several retirement accounts with a number of different employers and financial providers. And in many cases, this money can be left to stagnate in investments that aren't geared to your specific goals.

Whether you have just one account that needs to move, or your retirement assets are all over the map, you have options.

You are invited to a free informative seminar on Job Changes and Your Retirement Assets. The topics to be covered include:

- Understanding your retirement options
- Ways to invest your money after you change jobs
- Making the most of tax-advantaged accounts

Seating is limited. Please call today to reserve your space at the seminar, or for more information on how I can help you with your retirement accounts.
